Embracing Human-Centered Design & Design Thinking is Key

Human-centered design (HCD) is a mindset that emphasizes the importance of the human experience.

Design thinking is an approach to problem solving that keeps people, and what matters to them, at the center of solutions. It is grounded in the HCD mindset.

Winning companies embrace design thinking so they can generate solutions that allow them to respond to the changing needs and expectations of their customers and employees.

Poll

How committed is your organization to human-fluency?

1. Fully committed, doing well
2. Fully committed, struggling
3. Superficially committed, little action/budget to support it
4. Not a priority
5. I'm trying to get other people to care!

DESIGN THINKING INNOVATION PROCESS

Finding Opportunities

FRAME A QUESTION

Identify the right problem to solve for.

GATHER INSPIRATION

Inspire new thinking by discovering what people really need.

SYNTHESIZE FOR ACTION

Make meaning out of diverse information to identify a strategic focus.

Creating Solutions

GENERATE IDEAS

Push past obvious solutions to come up with breakthrough ideas.

MAKE IDEAS TANGIBLE

Build rough representations of your idea to help you think.

TEST TO LEARN

Experiment your way toward market through iterative prototyping.

The myth of “when” to adopt a capabilities focus

IF YOU ARE WAITING
for the
RIGHT TIME
..... it's
NOW

ALWAYS IN BETA

We've built a network of Design Thinking JEDI across the organization

A self-sustaining army that continually learn together, who (along w other jedi) are comfortable to lead teams to solve the biggest, most meaningful problems of the network AND HAVE FUN

- We role model “learn by doing”
- We believe that it’s safe to try together
- We role model “network resource” - sit in Belgrade, work on Pakistan, sit in India, work on Eurasia & Middle East

And Created an eco-system where sharing business challenges &
tapping into the
Jedi network to help solve it, is just a few clicks away

Lagging

Leading

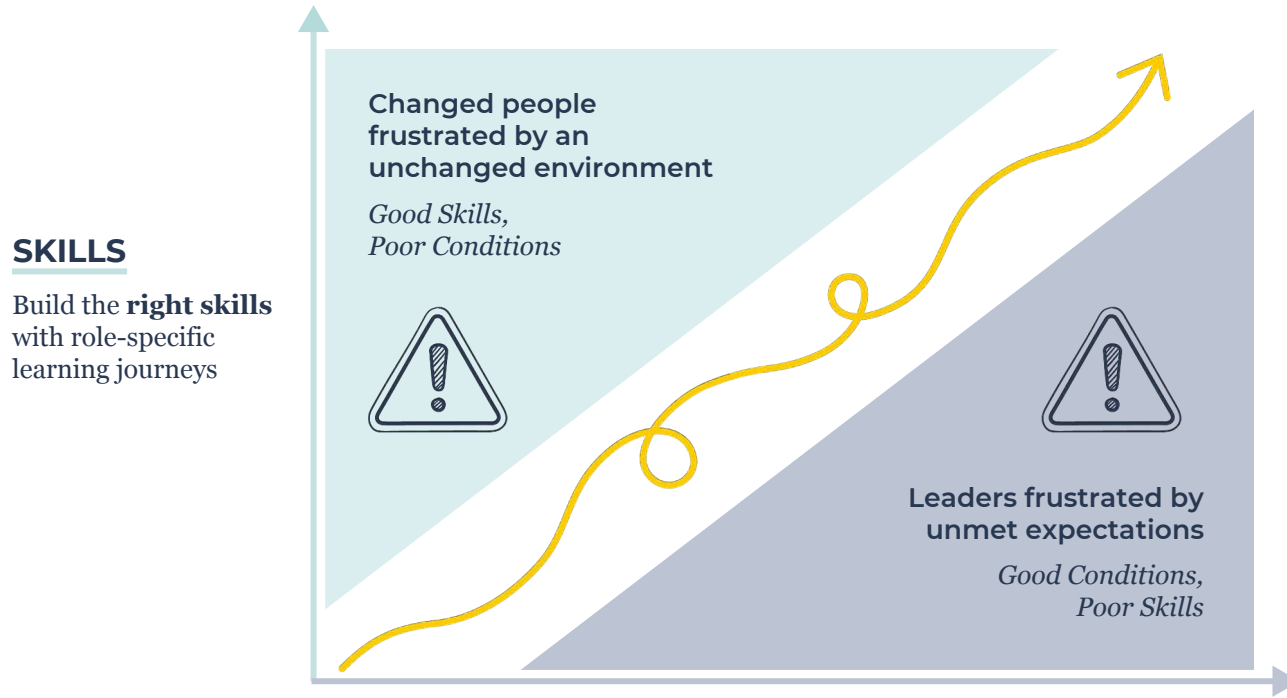

Pitfall = Cultural Resistance

So...

Skills and Conditions

AN INNOVATION CULTURE REQUIRES THE RIGHT SKILLS X RIGHT CONDITIONS

OUTCOMES

Achieve business outcomes from the daily use of human-centered design including:

- New sources of value from better, more user-centered solutions (products, services, processes, experiences, etc.)
- Lower the risk and cost of new ideas
- Move quicker and respond to changes and challenges with greater confidence
- Fully activate, engage and retain people

Poll

What innovation outcomes are most important to your organization right now?

1. New sources of revenue
2. Higher margin from existing revenues
3. Lower the risk and cost of new ideas
4. Fully activate, engage and retain people
5. General “future-proofing”

and People

So...

In the business, not on the business

Pitfall = Stalled Progress

So...

Riskier to go slow than go fast

Pitfall = Lack of Early Impact

So...

Just in time (not just in case)

Virtuous Cycle of Impact

Pitfall = External Dependencies

So...

Nurture a networked community
of practice

"You are the ones you've been waiting for"

Catalyst Status

CAPABILITY

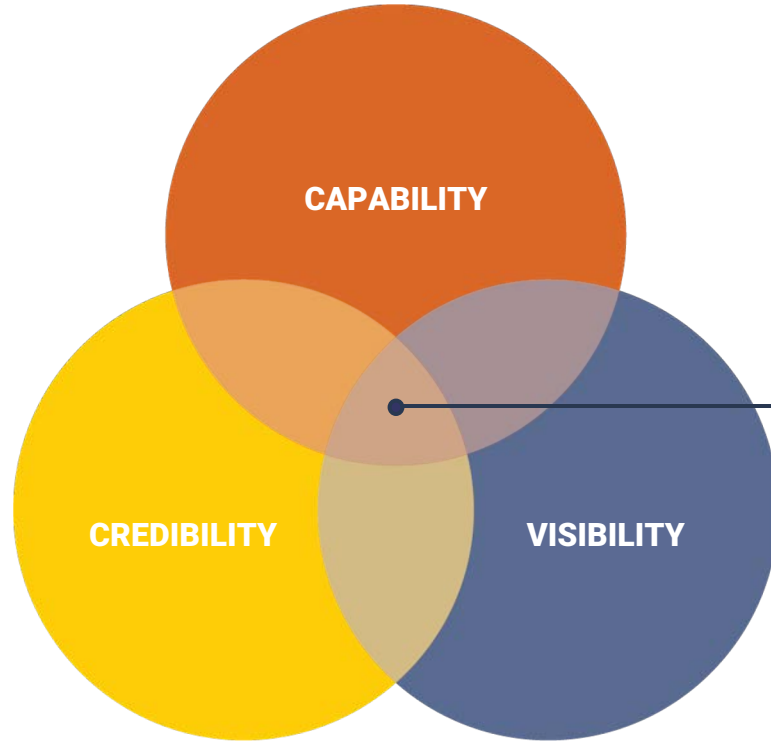

Do not need to be experts, but do need to know enough to help people try new approaches when they are stuck.

CREDIBILITY

For people to engage in the methods they espouse, people need belief in the abilities of Catalysts.

VISIBILITY

Everyone in the organization needs to know who they can turn to when they are stuck.

We hyper-accelerate the typically slow grind to credibility and visibility by attaching Catalyst brands to our world class experiences, which also serve to supplement and develop capability through cycles of teaching with a platform.

Poll

What represents the greatest opportunity for your organization in building capabilities?

1. Focus on conditions (not just skills)
2. Establish outcome driven KPI's (vs output)
3. Build momentum (vs decaying into cynicism)
4. Just-in-time learning (vs just-in-case)
5. Community of Practice (vs lonely islands of enthusiasm)
